Pre-Service - HARPER MEMORIAL - G. Hugg (1848-1907)

Prelude - SARDIS (May the Grace of Christ Our Savior) - L. Beethoven (1770 - 1827)

Everybody I know has a care, worry, anxiety, or burden that they carry each day. Being human, we experience a lot of stress trying to endure these critical times. Sometimes our cares are about family or friends who are ill, injured, or having issues. Other times, our burdens are for the world we live in, because of wars, famines, and natural disasters.

[Psalm 91] reminds people of faith that God helps us to endure each day, each crisis, and each critical time. We are not left on our own or abandoned to the whims of capricious leaders or unexpected events. God's purpose for the world cannot be thwarted; God's justice in the world will prevail. As the old saying goes, "Kingdoms may rise and leaders may fall, but the word of the Lord endures forever."

Whatever you are currently experiencing or going through, please know that God is mindful of what's happening and can still be relied upon in the midst of your troubles, worries, and problems. As the wise psalmist wrote long ago, "Cast your cares on God and the Lord will sustain you."

Point to ponder: What burdens am I carrying right now? Am I willing to share them and fully hand them over to God?
